All,
Good evening once again to everyone. After having reviewed nearly 1100 case files since the project started, I am near the end of the remaining files to be initially reviewed. There were not many clearly releasable cases today and so the lists are a little smaller than usual. Once I get through everything once, I will go back through those cases I initially felt needed further investigation and really take a hard look at their viability. Those that I can justify abandoning I will, with the releases to follow these determinations. We will see how this all goes next week. For now, here are today's lists
