[redacted]'s TDY assignment to GTMO began in the middle of September 2002 and ended in late October 2002. [redacted] was teamed with SSA [redacted] also from NCAVC, both of whom were responsible for providing behavioral analysis assistance to law enforcement and military personnel conducting interrogations of detainees. While [redacted] never participated in detainee interrogations, he sometimes observed them. Also, when requested, he reviewed background files of the detainees to assist in the formation of interview strategies.

[redacted]'s primary point of contact was [redacted] a civilian contractor employed by the military, who was responsible for the interrogations at GTMO. [redacted] directed military reservists who conducted the interrogations of the detainees. SSA [redacted] advised [redacted] exhibited "bizarre behavior", meaning he displayed a range of emotions and often "lost it" or became very angry when something insignificant occurred.

When [redacted] arrived at GTMO, number [redacted] was incarcerated in a darkened cell in the Naval Brig. [redacted] told [redacted] he planned to have military personnel interrogate number [redacted] for 24 hours in an attempt to get him to cooperate. When [redacted] objected to this technique, [redacted] said the technique had been approved by "the Secretary" who [redacted] understood to be Secretary Rumsfeld. After some discussion and input from [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] the decision was made to provide number [REDACTED] with food since he had been on a self induced fast for a few days. Number [REDACTED] did eat the food, but still refused to provide any information during his interrogation. He was subsequently moved to a plywood interrogation hut in Camp X-Ray. While in Camp X-Ray, number [REDACTED] was aggressively interrogated by military reservists at the direction of [REDACTED]. During the interrogation, the reservists yelled and screamed at number [REDACTED]. Additionally, a German Shepard was positioned at the door of the interrogation hut and made to growl and bark at the detainee. At one point, one of the interrogators placed a Koran in front of number [REDACTED] while number [REDACTED] was seated in a chair. The interrogator then straddled the Koran, at which point the detainee became very angry, but still refused to provide any information.

Late one evening, [REDACTED] witnessed a second incident which involved a detainee who had been duct taped. [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] were in an observation room, located between two interrogation rooms, watching military personnel conduct an interrogation. At some point, [REDACTED] entered the room and told [REDACTED] to come with him as he wanted to show him something. [REDACTED] accompanied [REDACTED] to another observation room, located down the hall, where several Military Police were observing an interrogation. When he entered the observation room, [REDACTED] observed an unknown detainee with a full head of hair and a beard whose head was wrapped in duct tape in the adjacent interrogation room. There were two interrogators in the room with the detainee. [REDACTED] asked [REDACTED] if the detainee had been spitting at the interrogators or exhibiting belligerent behavior toward them. [REDACTED] replied no, and then told [REDACTED] the detainee's head had been duct taped because he would not stop quoting the Koran. [REDACTED] did not approve of the treatment of the detainee and asked [REDACTED] how he planned to remove the duct tape, but [REDACTED] never answered him. [REDACTED] then exited the observation room and returned to his quarters.

Based on conversations with [REDACTED] [REDACTED] believed Department of Defense authorization for the permitted use of harsh/aggressive interrogation techniques may have come from Secretary Rumsfeld. On several occasions when [REDACTED] questioned [REDACTED] about the techniques utilized, [REDACTED] said it had been approved by "the Secretary", who [REDACTED] understood to be Secretary Rumsfeld. With the exception of [REDACTED]'s comments
