Original E-Mail:

[REDACTED] I just returned from annual leave and read the below requested reply e-mail. I was TDY to GTMO from 9/25/03 - 11/11/03. The only matter which may be relevant that I observed was: (Date Unknown, possibly Oct/Nov timeframe) SA [REDACTED] and myself were at Camp Delta, in the (Gold Trailer, I believe) Interview/Interrogation trailer. We heard loud music coming from the right far rear of one of the interview/interrogation rooms and proceeded to enter the observation booth in between rooms. The lights were off in the Interview/Interrogation room but there was a strobe light on with loud music inside and a clothed detainee sitting on the floor, no one else was in the room. An unknown white male in civilian clothing entered the observation room we were in, and told us we should not be there. SA [REDACTED] and myself exited the room. Does this constitute aggressive treatment and warrant a follow-up interview by you? If not, should I complete a negative reply EC stating I did not observe any other unusual/aggressive treatment?

I had initially contacted SA [REDACTED] regarding this matter and he advised me it was not he who was with me during the incident. I can not recall what agent was with me. I had initially thought it was SA [REDACTED] due to the fact we were together 90 percent of the time.
